I had a single rat problem in a rental condo a few years back. I was pleasantly surprised when the exterminator we called showed up, left a trap, then came back to take the creature's carcass away. That rat was big as a cat and had the tenant's two children (as well as the parents) had been terrified.

This was outside of Los Angeles, so can't recommend the exterminator. But he was so nonchalant about the trapping and capture (all within 24 hours), that I was in awe of his skill.

Pick up the stuffing , remove it. Clean out the oven as you would to clean it out well (soap and water, etc.) Turn the oven on...the rodent will move.

4a Re: Big 5 comes to HP

Sat Dec 6, 2014 2:09 pm (PST) . Posted by: "Scott Rubel" scottford1124

Isn't Big 5 one of those stores that offers better prices on sporting goods and shoes? If so, then I don't think this is a harbinger for Starbucks. The same people who think five dollars is what a cup of coffee should cost are not the same crowd that wants a discount on Keds. I do not want our neighborhood to be saved by giant chain stores, even though it's a fruitless wish. I would rather see the individuals who give a business district some character.

Trader Joes is already in our area. It takes less than ten minutes to get to the South Pasadena one from Montecito Heights. Yes, a closer one would be nice, but ten minutes is reasonable enough for me (and I hate leaving town more than most). So, if someone starts a new T.J. petition, I would sign it, but I'm not putting effort into trying to change the business decisions of a company that seems to know what it's doing.

Why do we want chain stores? I don't want a Starbucks. they kill off any local shops.

7 Please Write or Go to City Hall to Support a GMO-Free Los Angeles

Sat Dec 6, 2014 2:10 pm (PST) . Posted by: "Scott Rubel" scottford1124

The ASNC Public Safety, Health and Welfare Committee meeting on the 2nd was informative and a lively discussion. We have an exciting opportunity to set an example here and to help make up for a grave mistake we made voting down the recent GMO labeling law proposition. Los Angeles, known throughout the world as the factory of make-believe, could become known for being a champion in fighting a worldwide threat to the well-being of the planet, and of course to our individual health, which is genetically modified food.

This is urgent because we need City Hall to act before a sinister pesticide industry "seed bill" goes into effect on January 1.

A couple of days ago Roy Payan posted a sample of a letter you can write if you want to have a influence on this cause, which bans the growing of GMO plants and seeds in Los Angeles. I am posting it again below.

If you can possibly make it to City Hall on Tuesday late morning, it's another chance to express yourself about this issue. For more information on contacting the right people, please go to this website.
<http://salsa3.salsalabs.com/o/50865/t/0/blastContent.jsp?email_blast_KEY=1304732>

===Sample Letter Below===

Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti: (213) 978-0600 <mayor.garcetti@lacity.org>
CD1 Councilmember Gil Cedillo: (213) 473-7001 <Councilmember.Cedillo@lacity.org>
CD14 Councilmember Jose Huizar: (323) 526-9366 <councilmember.huizar@lacity.org>

Re: Support for Koretz-O'Farrell motion #13-1374

Make the City of Los Angeles a GMO-free Zone with regard to the sale, distribution and growth of GMO plants and seeds by prohibiting the growth of genetically modified crops within the city of Los Angeles.

In a democracy, everyone has the right to make choices. So long as companies keep the content of the foods we eat secret, we cannot make choices. So long as they keep selling GMO-modified seeds and plants in our stores without identifying them as such, we cannot make choices. And even if we can avoid purchasing them ourselves, so long as they are sold in our city, it is far too easy for them to contaminate our own plants and gardens.

Furthermore, an unregulated herbicide-resistant GMO grass is due to come on the market shortly and will certainly be marketed aggressively to golf courses and parks across the country. Once such a GMO grass establishes itself in Los Angeles, it would spread all too easily into our wetlands, wilderness and river areas as well as our own lawns and, like all herbicide-resistant products, would require significantly increased use of chemicals at considerable cost to the city and our fragile eco-system. Additionally, it would require substantially more water which is unsustainable in our current drought conditions.

I strongly support #13-1374 by Paul Koretz and Mitch O'Farrell and urge all Councilmembers to support and pass this ordinance prohibiting the growth of any and all GMO crops within city limits.

Sincerely,
